Haldex recruits Lottie Saks as new CFO

Haldex has recruited Lottie Saks as new CFO. She succeeds Andreas Larsson, who ends on 30 July 2020. Lottie will take up the position as CFO on 1 June 2020.

Lottie Saks has extensive experience from leading finance roles in companies with significant international operations. Lottie most recently came from the role as CFO at Cint. Prior to that, she worked for five years as CFO of OneMed, a European provider of healthcare products owned by listed venture capital firm 3i. She previously held senior positions at, among others, OMX Technology Financial Markets and Johnson & Johnson. She began her career with auditing at Arthur Andersen.

"I am very pleased to welcome Lottie to the important role as CFO at Haldex. Her broad experience from various industries and international operations will be very valuable in our work at Haldex to the next level. Lottie will be an important part of our management team and I look forward to working with her," says Helene Svahn, President and CEO of Haldex.

"It's an honor to start at Haldex. Haldex is a company with a solid history, good values and exciting opportunities. I look forward to join Helene and her team and hope my experience will be useful and add to Haldex's continued development. "
