Haldex Pilot Valves upgraded for extended life, low-pressure applications.

To meet the unique requirements of low-pressure applications, Haldex has engineered some internal components of our Pilot Valves to be even more robust, resulting in higher confidence and longer service life.

These component upgrades do not change the fit, form, or function of our Pilot Valves in traditional applications. Upgraded part numbers are listed below.

For questions or additional documentation regarding these changes, please contact your Haldex representative before September 30, 2020.
